I disagree with your concept of “intellectual content” – and it is not just this version, but previous versions as well. Further, this was not just my opinion, but those of others more senior to me.

Hi Ron,

I looked over the link you sent. As I thought, I have not sent new versions of the draft because I do not consider the revisions to affect the intellectual content of the manuscript.

Since it is crucial, I will add the action plan reference and text to the introduction. I will send it around just encase anyone has a problem, but I have spoken with most co-authors by phone this week.

Thanks,
Johnsie

Johnsie,

Simply based on how fast you have been turning around these revised manuscripts, it is clear you are not obtaining approvals from your co-authors. Failure to do so is a violation of the NHEERL authorship policy, which in turn are consistent with the guidelines published several years ago by the International Committee of Medical Journal Editors (<http://icmje.org/recommendations/browse/roles-and-responsibilities/defining-the-role-of-authors-and-contributors.html>). Before initiating what hopefully will be this last round of clearance, please ensure all of the authors have read and approve of the manuscript.

Ron

Hi Ron,

I have addressed the majority of the most recent round of comments. Please see the attached file for an updated version. I have copied Drew on this email so he can re-upload into STICS.

Ex. 5 Deliberative Process (DP)

Boone et al. 2018 is a drinking water treatment paper not a wastewater paper. These processes are very different and therefore I will not be citing the Boone paper when I discuss wastewater treatment.

Thanks,

Johnsie
